Viewing this interesting state of things in its comparative light, and allowing for the difference in value of the circulating medium in Australia and England, it is very certain, indeed there is no man so poor under the one, that by judicious management of funds a very creditable show may be made for a very little money. I beg to inform you do it, and thousands are added to the number every year.

IN PARLIAMENT.

As soon as the Legislative Council met yesterday Mr. Jacob proposed the following resolution:—"Have any instruments for procuring with a 'prescribed instrument' in a 'prescribed manner' under section 44 of the Parliament Act, 1893, been ordered or contracted for? If so, how many, and at what cost? If not, how many, and at what cost?" Mr. Jacob's question was answered by Mr. Macfarlane, the Minister of the Interior, who stated that an instrument had been ordered, but that it was not yet received. He also stated that the cost of the instrument would be about £100.

There was a general impression among the members of the Council that the sitting would be very brief, consequently members were not present in large numbers. Mr. Jacob's question was answered by Mr. Macfarlane, the Minister of the Interior, who stated that an instrument had been ordered, but that it was not yet received. He also stated that the cost of the instrument would be about £100.

RETURN OF MR. ROBERT REID.

AN INTERESTING INTERVIEW.

The Hon. Robert Reid, Minister of Defence, of Victoria, who was some months back despatched on special mission by the Victorian Government to London to take part in the conference of the British and Commonwealth naval officers, returned to Australia yesterday by the Canadian liner Warrenton. He is accompanied by Mrs. Reid, and special arrangements have been made for his reception. Yesterday he was interviewed by a representative of the Herald, and furnished some very interesting particulars relative to his mission.

Mr. Reid is enthusiastic about the subject of his mission, and his views, after a three months' spin round the world, travelling night and day, speaking at all great centres of English commerce, are of a most optimistic nature. It would be a great day for Australia if Mr. Reid had his way; but, in his opinion, we must wait a little before we can feel the universe with respect to our relations with the world. In the meantime, Mr. Reid has had a most successful mission, and he is not at all weary in his appearance—just an everyday prosperous business man, and, though his position as Minister of Defence, the subject of his mission, is a most important one, he does not relate in any large degree to the employment of arms. He rather, during his travels, cultivated the arts of peace, and advised the use of the ploughshare instead of the sword. He was in London, he said, at the time the great financial crisis had laid Australia prostrate, and he was in a better position than ever to report progress, and that, owing to his mission, the credit of the Australian Government was as good as ever. How he succeeded has been shown by the success of the mission. WHEELS OF WITNESS.
The following was posted at the Merchant's Exchange yesterday:—News has been received by the steamer "Albatross," arrived this morning, that the "Albatross" with labour was wrecked at some early day. The crew and labourers were taken on to Bundaberg, Queensland, by the steamer "Thetis."

STORMY TRIP OF THE VICTORIAN.
Captain T. K. Westman reports that the steamer Victorian left Fremantle on the 29th May at 3 p.m., passed Albatross on the 31st May at 11.30 a.m., and received orders on the 3rd June at 2 p.m., passed Cape Wainman on the 4th instant at 11.30 a.m., passed Cape Wainman on the 5th instant at 11.30 a.m., entered Melbourne Head at 8 a.m., and arrived at Melbourne at 11.30 a.m. On the 6th instant at 4.45 p.m. the Victorian was on the 7th instant at 4.45 p.m. same day, cleared heads at 11.30 a.m. and arrived at Fremantle at 11.15 a.m. On the 8th instant, the Victorian was on the 9th instant at 11.15 a.m. and arrived at Fremantle at 11.15 a.m.

THE GULF OF TARANTO.
The Gulf of Taranto, a narrow strait, is close by day. She is a fine cruiser, and steamed well. During the voyage from London, whence the steamer sailed on the 24 April, she performed a most successful cruise. She encountered a succession of W. and S.W. gales down the Channel to Tarrifre, and was also exposed to hard E. gales and light winds while in the Adriatic, and on the Indian Ocean. On 7th May (Sat. at 8, long 30° E.), when running before a strong southerly gale, several small boats were quickly and safely hoisted on board. On 10th, a hatch and stowing in the weather side of the bridge deck. With this exception the Taranto received no great order. The last three days of the cruise were fine and breezy, and the Taranto was in the best of health. She had to face hard S.W. N. and E. gales in her from the American Protective Tariff League. I have been a member of the Manufacturers' Association of the Wilson bill. Mr. Dalsey wrote to me, "American Protective Tariff League—Gentlemen,—I have received your many letters—very interesting. In reply would say that I am not a Democrat, I am not in favour of the eastern manufacturers being protected at the expense of our smaller western enterprises. Give me the world in which to compete with material, instead of competition with men. United States, and let us compete with the world. At the present time my workman and the western farmer have to pay whatever protection the eastern manufacturer has. We should have reciprocity with all nations with the world. There is more difference at the two ends of the State than there is between the wages of wage-slaves in England and the United States. The freight on implements across one State is more than the cost of labour in making the goods. Such being the case, what country can compete with us on an open market? We have been burdened long enough with protection for Carnegie and his like. Your circular has been on the recent financial

The cost of manufacturing iron ore is less than the implements, all told, is less than the cost of the iron ore per pound, while the cost of the iron ore is less than the cost of the iron ore per pound. Turn your gaze and see the waste of energy to correcting those abuses in the iron ore industry, freight transportation charges, and harvesting and shipping territory in which we may not produce what we need, and the tariff barriers that drive out people, by so doing, and the millions of the earth closer together, unshackled out.
